Which personal data to we collect and why do we collect them

Reactions

When visitors leave comments on the site, we collect the data shown in the response form, the IP address of the visitor and the browser user agent to help detect spam.

An anonymous string, created on the basis of your e-mail address (this is also called a hash) can be sent to the Gravatar service if you use it. The privacy policy page can be found here: <https://automattic.com/privacy/>. After your response is approved, your profile picture will be publicly visible in the context of your response.

Media

If you are a registered user and upload images to the site, you should avoid uploading images containing EXIF GPS location data. Visitors to the website can download the images from the website and view the location data.

Cookies

When you leave a comment on our site, you can indicate whether your name, your e-mail address and website may be stored in a cookie. We do this for your convenience so that you do not need to re-enter this information for a new response. These cookies are valid for one year.

If you have an account and you log in to this site, we store a temporary cookie to determine whether your browser accepts cookies. This cookie does not contain any personal information and will be deleted as soon as you close your browser.

Once you log in, we will save some cookies in connection with your login information and screen display options. Login cookies are valid for 2 days and cookies for screen display options 1 year. If you select "Remember me", your login will be saved for 2 weeks. Once you log out of your account, login cookies are removed.

When you change or publish a message, an additional cookie is stored by your browser. This cookie does not contain personal data and only contains the post ID of the article that you have edited. This cookie expired after a day.

Embedded content from other websites

Messages on this site may contain embedded (embedded) content (for example, videos, images, messages, etc.). Embedded content from other websites behaves exactly the same as if the visitor had visited this other website.

These websites may collect data about you, use cookies, embed third party tracking and monitor your interaction with this embedded content, including the interaction with embedded content if you have an account and are logged into that website.Analytics

With whom do we share your dataHow long do we save your data

When you leave a comment, that comment and the metadata of that comment are kept forever. In this way we can automatically recognize and approve follow-up reactions instead of moderating them.

For users who are registered on our website (if applicable), we also store persona information in their user profile. All users can view, change or delete their personal information at any time (the username cannot be changed). Website administrators can also view and change this information.

What rights do you have about our data

If you have an account on this site or you have left comments, you can request an export file of your personal information that we have from you, including all details you have provided us. You can also request that we delete all personal information we have about you. This does not contain any data that we are required to keep for administrative, legal or security purposes.

Where do we send your data

Responses from visitors can be guided through an automated spam detection service.
